

If EVERYONE sees people, situations,
the world DIFFERENTLY...

Is this a good / bad thing?

Is what we read /see true?

Are there any actual “facts”?

What factors shape our perceptions of the world?

How does perception/perspective affect everything we know or learn?

Rapid Perception See Things Well And Quickly:

Quickness of Perception Edgar Wakefield Hassler, 1891

Perception in Visual Communication. Evolution and Neurology of Vision Simon Valentin, 2015-05-06 Seminar paper from the year 2015 in the subject Biology Evolution grade 13 Karlsruhe Institute of Technology KIT ZAK Zentrum für Angewandte Kulturwissenschaft course Visual Communication and Culture language English abstract Today in our fast moving computer driven lives we are exposed to a myriad of sensations every second and not only from the environment or nature around us but also from ceaseless attacks through our modern media that is mostly based on visual stimulation So the topic of perception is although it has been dealt with throughout the centuries from the stoic philosophy of the Greeks to modern neurologists a highly current one that affects us all and every day in an unprecedented way Not least as a popular American crime drama television series with the title Perception where an eccentric neuropsychiatrist uses his unique perception abilities to solve complex criminal cases and a modern theatre play Molly Sweeney by Brian Friel on stage at the moment at Theater Lindenhof in Melchingen Germany where the protagonist a young woman regained her eyesight through an operation and could not cope with the overwhelming sensations show the current fascination of the topic In the following chapters I will draw attention to the basic principles of perception especially visual perception as well as the evolution concept and the functioning of our eyes to come to a better understanding of how we see things and the way our visual perception works

The Vision Revolution Mark Changizi, 2009-06-02 In The Vision Revolution How the Latest Research Overturns Everything We Thought We Knew About Human Vision Mark Changizi prominent neuroscientist and vision expert addresses four areas of human vision and provides explanations for why we have those particular abilities complete with a number of full color illustrations to demonstrate his conclusions and to engage the reader Written for both the casual reader and the science buff hungry for new information The Vision Revolution is a resource that dispels commonly believed perceptions about sight and offers answers drawn from the field's most recent research Changizi focuses on four why questions 1 Why do we see in color 2 Why do our eyes face forward 3 Why do we see illusions 4 Why does reading come so naturally to us Why Do We See in Color It was commonly believed that color vision evolved to help our primitive ancestors identify ripe fruit Changizi says we should look closer to home ourselves Human color vision evolved to give us greater insights into the mental states and health of other people People who can see color changes in skin have an advantage over their color blind counterparts they can see when people are blushing with embarrassment purple faced with exertion or the reddening of rashes Changizi's research reveals that the cones in our eyes that allow us to see color are exquisitely designed exactly for seeing color changes in the skin And it's no coincidence that the primates with color vision are the ones with bare spots on their faces and other body parts Changizi shows that the development of color vision in higher primates closely parallels the loss of facial hair culminating in the near hairlessness and highly developed color vision of humans Why Do Our Eyes Face Forward Forward facing eyes set us apart from most mammals and there is much dispute as to why we have them While some speculate that we evolved this feature to give us depth perception available through stereo vision this type of vision only allows us to see short distances and we already have other mechanisms that help us to estimate distance Changizi's research shows that with two forward facing eyes primates and humans have an x ray ability Specifically we're able to see through the cluttered leaves of the forest environment in which we evolved This feature helps primates see their targets in a crowded encroached environment To see how this works hold a finger in front of your eyes You'll find that you're able to look through it at what is beyond your finger One of the most amazing feats of two forward facing eyes Our views aren't blocked by our noses beaks etc Why Do We See Illusions We evolved to see moving objects not where they are but where they are going to be Without this ability we couldn't catch a ball because the brain's ability to process visual information isn't fast enough to allow us to put our hands in the right place to intersect for a rapidly approaching baseball If our brains simply created a perception of the way the world was at the time light hit the eye then by the time that perception was elicited which takes about a tenth of a second for the brain to do time would have marched on and the perception would be of the recent past Changizi explains Simply put illusions occur when our brain is tricked into thinking that a stationary two dimensional picture has an element that is moving Our brains project the moving element into the future and as a result we don't see what's on the page but what our brain thinks will be the case a fraction of a second into the future Why Does Reading Come So Naturally to Us We can read faster than we can hear which is odd considering that reading is relatively recent

Illusions of Seeing Thomas Ditzinger, 2021 Why do we need two eyes Why are all cats grey at night and appear to move faster the day Why is the sky blue and the setting sun red This book explains the multifaceted nature of perception and discusses the mysteries of vision It provides readers with experiments to help them discover optical illusions and the features of their own perception Illusions of Seeing begins with a discussion on the essence of light and its perception to the human eye It presents a comprehensive overview of the basic laws of human perception as well as the fundamentals of good gestalt Subsequent chapters discuss geometric optical illusions the perception of form brightness and translucency and their interaction with each other ambiguous perception color vision spatial vision The book ends with a discussion of the perception of motion and its interaction with color form and spatial depth with a full chapter devoted to illusions in our everyday life Consider this your travel guide in the marvelous world of sight to experience a completely individual way to understand and improve your own perception Illusions of Seeing will be of interest to psychologists physicists biologists and undergraduate and graduate students within the field of cognitive psychology
