JOHN STEINBECK

John Steinbeck was born in Salinas, California in 1902. After studying science at Stanford University he worked successfully as a laborer, druggist, journalist, fruit-packer and surveyor, and wrote his first novel, Cup of Gold, in 1929. Other novels include East of Eden, Cannery Row, Tortilla Flat, Of Mice and Men, The Moon Is Down and The Grapes of Wrath, for which he was awarded a Pulitzer Prize. Steinbeck also published several collections of short stories, and his own adaptation of Of Mice and Men has been staged throughout the world. In 1962 Steinbeck was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature. He died in 1968.

Steinbeck's own stage version of his classic novel tells the story of George and Lennie, the fast-talking farm hand and the simple giant who accompanies him on a life of casual labour in the California Agricultural Belt of the 1930's. They share a dream of a little place of their own, where Lennie can tend the rabbits and they can "live off the fat of the land." But when Lennie unwittingly kills the young wife of a farm owner's son, George must shatter their dreams to keep Lennie from falling into the hands of the law and the vigilante farmhands bent on revenge.

PRODUCTION NOTE

This acting edition, while containing sufficient stage directions for general use, is not so detailed as many plays that require more realistic and exact instructions. The point is that the dialogue and characterizations are so important as to require instructions that need no stage directions in which every instance is specifically referred to and almost every word of every character carefully delineated. As a matter of fact, a good deal of the movement of the characters in nearly all the scenes can be left to a great extent to the discretion of the director. However, a few particular additional suggestions may be called for. These are as follows:

The outdoor scenes (Act I, Scene One and Act III, Scene One) needs almost no scenery. For example, the "sandy beach of the Salinas River" need actually show no beach at all. The scene should be suggested not as a technical requirement but simply in order to set the mood. It may or may not be wise to show a bath of the long grass mentioned in Act III, Scene One. Much of this sort of thing can only be suggested for the imagination. The same thing holds true with a good deal of the stage business here, such as the washing in the river and the drinking of water. It will, of course, never be shown all directions that in Act I, Scene One and Act III, Scene One, a good deal can be shown for the character was not light. When a single light on a particular bit of action will help in the presentation of the scene, show it.

Act I, Scene One. The location of the bookkeeper. This scene has a single entrance, up C, which is used by all the actors in the scene. This should, of course, have a back set to it. At least one window is necessary upstairs. This window should be arranged so that it can be opened and closed. The window should be fairly near the entrance. The main furniture required in the house, a few boxes and perhaps two or three occasional chairs, also small boxes scattered in the wall for each book. Finally, the hanging from the ceiling mentioned in the text. In this scene and in a later scene, it will be noticed that the old blind dog is described as "limping on stage." Because getting and using an actual dog may offer real difficulties, the director is urged to consider some simple device whereby the dog is just rattling, at one side of the entrance. To do this will necessitate some slight adjustment of the location of the woman when the dog is now indicated as being actually on stage.

Act II, Scene One. The two groups referred to in this scene and the puppets referred to in earlier scenes should be placed in the scene, of course, in real animals. A distance of a wall of cloth can easily be substituted.

Act II, Scene Two. The setting here should be very small and compact, and the lighting plans a most important item.

Act III, Scene One. Although the actual playing space here is extremely small, it is suggested to be laid in a large hall. There is no point in attempting any sort of realism, particularly for the entrance of the law, as to make it in a large or less direct stage C. The rest of the scene should be kept in shadow for the most part. From the business of looking between the boards of the hall might be treated intelligently, an actual attempt to make the entrance into it after night has fallen on them when the characters meet or where they are seen.

OF MICE AND MEN

ACT ONE

Scene One

Thursday night. A sandy beach of the Salinas River sheltered with willows and great oaks up R. The stage is covered with dry leaves. The feeling is sheltered and quiet. Stage is lit by a setting sun.

Curtain rises on empty stage. A sparrow is singing. There is a distant sound of ranch dogs barking calmly and one clear goat call. The goat call turns to a warning call and there is a lead of the flock's wings. Two figures are seen entering L or R, it makes no difference, in single file, with GEORGE, the short man, coming in ahead of Lennie. Both men are carrying blanket rolls. They approach the water. The small man throws down his blanket roll, the large man follows, then falls down and drinks from the river, waiting as he drinks.

- GEORGE (eventually) Lennie, for God's sake, don't drink so much. (He leans over and shakes Lennie.) Lennie, you hear me? You gonna be sick like you was last night.
- (Lennie dips his whole head under, but and all. As he sits on bank, his hat drips down the bank.)
- Lennie That's good. You drink some, George. You drink some, too.
- GEORGE (standing, dipping his finger in water) I ain't sure it's good water. Looks kinda nasty to me.
- Lennie (sitting, slipping his finger into) Look at them wrinkles in the water, George. Look what I done.
- GEORGE (drinking from his cupped palm) Tastes all right. Don't seem to be ruzsin' much, though.
