

Check directional control by rotating control handle both ways, then releasing handle, for correct function. Report any malfunction. Do not attempt to operate truck until repair has been made.

Be sure lift and tilt control feature of control handle moves freely and returns to center or neutral position when released.

Before starting a lift truck, begin from a safe condition. Check to see that:

- Brake is applied (foot is not on brake pedal).
- Forks are fully lowered to floor.
- You are familiar with how all controls function.
- All controls are in neutral or other correct position.

Turn key switch ON.

Check hour meter operation. With key switch ON, release brake (step on brake pedal). The steer pump and hourmeter should begin operating. Watch for movement of indicator in the dial opening. Report any malfunction or damage.

Turn key switch off and remove foot from brake. Power steer motor should stop turning after an eight (8) second delay.

Write hourmeter reading on PM report form.

Check battery discharge indicator. The indicator should register in green area when key switch is ON. Also, check function of battery discharge indicator when making a battery load test, below.

Battery Load Test

Check battery condition by loading operator hand control in full back tilt position, allowing pump to run against loading of bypass relief pressure for a few seconds. Watch battery discharge indicator. The needle should stay in green area. If needle falls into red area, battery is faulty or charge level is low and battery must be recharged before completing other electrical tests and performance parts of PM.

BEFORE DRIVING THE TRUCK, DO THESE TESTS:

Test for correct function of lift pump motor switch on LIFT position of operator control handle. Turn key switch ON. Slowly pull back on operator control handle (RAISE position). The pump motor should start to run as handle moves from neutral position. Push handle forward (LOWER position) until upright starts to lower. Pump will stop running. Pump motor should not operate when handle is moved to "lower" position.

If operator control handle movement is excessive before pump starts, or if pump does not stop running when handle returns to neutral, speed control switch needs repair or adjustment.

Test for correct function of motor switch for TILT, REACH, and ROTATE function control.

Slowly move tilt control portion of operator control handle forward and then backwards, while pressing on blue side of toggle switch (showing picture of TILT on switch). (Pressing this blue switch prevents LIFT motor from turning ON).

This movement should activate tilt cylinder.

Repeat test for reach control, if installed, by depressing yellow side of toggle switch (showing picture of REACH on switch) and pulling back or pushing forward on control handle at same time. Refer to discussion above if handle movement of switch when it is not correct.

Check function of parking brake microswitch. With key switch ON and parking brake applied (foot of brake pedal), move operator control handle to FORWARD position. Rotate operator control handle to FWD direction slowly. The drive motor should not operate. If it does, microswitch on the parking brake linkage is not adjusted correctly. Also, check REVERSE direction operation of handle.

Check brake switch and braking action. Release brake by stepping on brake pedal. Rotate operator control handle to move truck slowly forward. Then, apply brake by taking foot of brake pedal. The brake should turn drive motor off and stop and hold truck from further movement.

To check brake holding capability and adjustment, park truck on a grade and apply brake. The brake should hold a lift truck with rated load on a 10% grade. When brake pedal is released, brake should not drag.

CAUTION - Do not operate a lift truck if brake is not operating properly.

Test for correct function of power steering pump switch and system. Turn key switch ON and release brake. The steer pump should begin operating.

With truck not moving, check steering system by moving steering handwheel in a full right turn, and then in a full left turn. Return handwheel (steer wheel) to straight ahead position. The steering components should operate smoothly when steering wheel is turned. Listen for steering pressure relief valve to fly open when steer wheel hits stops. The steer pump and motor should not stall or exhibit excessive loading. If it does, power steering system relief pressure valve may be malfunctioning.

Turn key switch OFF and apply brake. Steer pump should stop after an eight (8) second delay.

NOTICE - The steering system, steer wheel and steering linkage should be inspected periodically for abnormal looseness and damage. Check for any changes in steering action. Tight steering, excessive flexing (looseness) or unusual sounds when turning or maneuvering indicate a need for inspection and servicing.

Never operate a truck which has a steering system fault.
