Choosing Charters Joshua L. Glazer, 2018-03-30 Do charter schools strengthen students educational experience What are their social costs This volume brings together a group of premier researchers to address questions about the purposes of charter schools and the role of public policy in shaping the educational agenda Chapter authors explore topics seldom encountered in the current charter school debate such as the challenges faced by charter schools in guaranteeing students civil rights and other legal protections the educational and social implications of current instructional programs designed specifically for low income and minority students the use of charters as school turnaround agents and other issues that lie at the intersection of education politics and social policy Readers across the political spectrum both supporters and critics of charter schools can use this book to inform public policy about the ways in which charters affect diversity and inequality and the potential to devise policies that mitigate the most troublesome social costs of charter schools Book Features Examines how charter schools affect diversity and equity in U S schools Describes how segregation plays out by race ethnicity and income by disability and language minority status and by culture language and religion Considers charter schools within a broader social context of high poverty rates changing demographics and continued housing and school segregation Examines charter schools in the context of a new federal administration that is forging its own path in education and other domains of social policy Includes some of the most prominent researchers and commentators in the field spanning policy research traditions methodological approaches and theoretical perspectives

Planning & Changing, 2016 Probing auditory scene analysis Elyse S Sussman, Susan Denham, Susann Deike, 2015-02-11 In natural environments the auditory system is typically confronted with a mixture of sounds originating from different sound sources As sounds spread over time the auditory system has to continuously decompose competing sounds into distinct meaningful auditory objects or auditory streams referring to certain sound sources This decomposition work which was termed by Albert Bregman as Auditory scene analysis ASA involves two kinds of grouping to be done Grouping based on simultaneous cues such as harmonicity and on sequential cues such as similarity in acoustic features over time Understanding how the brain solves these tasks is a fundamental challenge facing auditory scientist In recent years the topic of ASA was broadly investigated in different fields of auditory research including a wide range of methods studies in different species and modeling Despite the advance in understanding ASA it still proves to be a major challenge for auditory research This includes verifying whether experimental findings are transferable to more realistic auditory scenes A central approach in understanding ASA is the use of certain stimulus parameters that produce an ambiguous percept The advantage of such an approach is that different perceptual organizations can be studied without varying physical stimulus parameters. Additionally, the perception of ambiguous stimuli can be volitionally controlled by intention or task. By using this one can mirror real hearing situations where listeners intent to identify and to localize auditory sources. Recently it was also found that in classical auditory streaming sequences perceptual ambiguity was not restricted to but was observed over a broad range of stimulus parameters. The proposed Research Topic pursues to bring together scientist in the different fields of auditory research whose work addresses the issue of perceptual ambiguity. Researchers were welcome to contribute experimental reports, computational modeling and reviews that consider auditory ambiguity in its modality specific characteristics as well as in comparison to visual ambiguous figures. The overall goal of contributions was to consider the experimental findings from the perspective of real auditory scenes. In a broader sense the Research Topic was open for contributions which are related to the issue of active listening in complex scenes.

An Evaluation of the Relationship Among North Carolina Reading Assessments Sophia Latrell

Crawford-Mapp, 2019. The purpose of this study was to extend the Bowles 2014 study in North Carolina to determine the relationship between the scores of the North Carolina beginning of grade BOG and end of grade EOG reading assessments, the scores of the mClass Text Reading and Comprehension TRC assessment and the scores of the CogAT assessment and to determine the degree the TRC, CogAT and NC BOG predict scores on the NC EOG reading assessment in third grade classrooms of nine elementary schools. This study was conducted in two parts to best address the research questions. The first part consisted of descriptive variance and inferential statistics calculated by demographic variables. This part described the strength of the relationship between the predictor variable BOG, TRC and CogAT and the EOG score on the reading assessment. The second part consisted of calculating multiple regression analyses using the assessment scores. This part described the predictability of BOG, TRC and CogAT to student scale scores on the reading comprehension portion of the EOG. This study found that there was a positive correlation and a strong relationship between the NC BOG and NC EOG. The NC BOG scores were statistically significant when predicting the NC reading EOG. Additionally, the second and third grade EOG, TRC and the NC EOG had a strong positive correlation and relationship. This study will be important for educators to accurately base instructional decisions on existing and newly collected data.
