

A detailed illustration of a bacterium, likely a motile species, shown in a light blue, textured environment. The bacterium has a central, elongated, purple and orange textured body, possibly representing internal organelles or a nucleus. It is surrounded by numerous long, thin, golden-brown flagella that extend outwards, giving it a hair-like appearance. The background is a light blue, almost white, surface with irregular, darker blue and green patches, suggesting a complex, possibly cellular or tissue-like environment.
