

NYS LAB: Relationships and Biodiversity

1.1 Laboratory Activity for the Living Environment

Background:

Plants produce a wide variety of substances or products (DM) as a result of their ability to synthesize organic matter from inorganic materials. These products are produced through photosynthesis. Plants make products that directly affect the prolonged survival and ability to produce DM of other organisms.

Plants that are more closely related to plants make the same type of products like important substances DM. These products are substances that are plants (C, H, and O₂) may be related to plants make the same substances like:

- A. DM: structural and metabolic products to determine which plant species are most closely related to the organismal system. Plants make:
- B. DM: substances to decide which plant species is most likely to survive and to produce the important substances DM.

Pre-Lab

Using the information on the previous page, determine what the two products are and try to answer the lab and how are the products related?

By completing this lab you will:
