Sea Clutter Sea Clutter:

Sea Clutter Keith D. Ward, Simon Watts, Robert J.A. Tough, 2006-06-21 Sea Clutter Scattering the K Distribution and Radar Performance examines the statistics of radar scattering from the sea surface in terms of their relevance to radar operating in a maritime environment including remote sensing surveillance and targeting applications A lot of the work in the book is based on the compound K distribution model for the amplitude statistics of sea clutter In addition the book addresses the specification of performance required by customers and the measurement of performance of systems supplied to customers

Sea Clutter L. B. Wetzel, 1990

Sea Clutter Keith Ward, Robert Tough, Simon Watts, 2013-04-22 The second edition of Sea Clutter Scattering the K Distribution and Radar Performance gives an authoritative account of our current understanding of radar sea clutter Topics covered include the characteristics of radar sea clutter modelling radar scattering by the ocean surface statistical models of sea clutter the simulation of clutter and other random processes detection of small targets in sea clutter imaging ocean surface features radar detection performance calculations CFAR detection and the specification and measurement of radar performance The calculation of the performance of practical radar systems is presented in sufficient detail for the reader to be able to tackle related problems with confidence For this fully revised and updated second edition new material has been added on the Doppler characteristics of sea clutter and associated detection processing methods bistatic sea clutter measurements electromagnetic scattering theory of littoral sea clutter and bistatic sea clutter the use of models for predicting radar performance including discussion of Lognormal and Weibull models further results and extended discussion on the modelling of the K distribution shape parameter for different conditions the simulation of Doppler spectra of sea clutter high grazing angle scattering and the use of the K distribution in other fields The material has been reorganized into four parts Sea Clutter Properties Mathematics of the K distribution Radar Detection and Physical Modelling This reorganization allows readers to access specific areas quickly without the need for an extensive knowledge of the other parts

Radar Sea Clutter Luke Rosenberg, Simon Watts, 2021-12-17 This book presents comprehensive coverage of new research into sea clutter characterisation and modelling radar performance prediction and maritime target detection The book also includes a summary of sea clutter scattering characteristics and datasets provided that can be used for modelling

On the Statistics of Sea Clutter G. R. Valenzuela, 1971

Sea Clutter Simulation, 2010 This dissertation presents the results of a study the aim of which was the prediction of sea clutter characteristics including the temporal properties of the return signals as observed by a maritime surveillance radar system The compound K distribution model used to generate clutter amplitude statistic enables the simulation of sea clutter with a good level of approximation to real radar data and this model forms the basis for the simulation of sea clutter amplitude statistic in this dissertation Using this distribution a sea clutter simulator is designed to generate correlated K distributed random variates from a predefined correlation function using the method by Ward and Tough

1 Results from the sea clutter simulator shows that the simulated correlated random variates fit the theoretical K distribution PDF Experimental sea clutter measurements were carried out using an experimental netted radar system This was done at Scarborough Cape Town Result obtained from the monostatic node is presented This shows the amplitude statistics of the clutter as well as the temporal variation of the Doppler spectrum Conclusions are drawn based on this results and suggestions made for further work Sea Clutter L. Engineering Experiment Station. Project no. A-2177, 1978 The Modelling of Radar Sea Clutter Simon Watts, 2013 This thesis presents selected research papers and patents written by Simon Watts between 1985 and 2012 on the topic of the modelling of radar sea clutter This work has been based on the development and exploitation of the compound K distribution model for the amplitude statistics of radar sea clutter It has covered the development of the model through the analysis of recorded radar data to establish its validity over a wide range of conditions and for both coherent and non coherent radar processing The work has also developed methods for exploiting the model for improved performance prediction for radar systems the analysis and development of new detection signal processing schemes and the use of these models for the specification and measurement of radar performance for the procurement of radar systems All the work has been undertaken in an industrial environment motivated by the need to develop improved radar systems to meet customer requirements SEA CLUTTER INVESTIGATION, 1968 The report contains spectral measurements of backscatter return from the surface of the sea via ionospheric paths Data was also taken of the return spectra of land and land sea boundaries The data was taken in conjunction with the operation of the high power Madre OHD radar at Randle Cliff Maryland The results show that it is not possible to classify the sea clutter into components due to the reflecting surface and the refracting ionosphere The conclusion reached is that the ionospheric movement is the dominant form and accounts for most of the backscatter spectral composition Author Radar Sea Clutter Studies Robert Deming Hayes, Georgia Institute of Technology.
