

A Beginner's Guide To PI sheets

Introduction:

PI Sheets in general can be used to describe the total production process or a part of it. The PI sheet is used to inform the process operator about the individual production steps that need to be performed. Apart from control information, the PI sheet can contain input fields and pushbuttons. You can, for example, define fields into which you want the process operator to enter the quantity of material components consumed for a phase. The material withdrawals must then be posted as goods issues in inventory management. You can use process messages to automatically carry out this function. In General there are two types of PI sheets in Normal SAP

1. ABAP based PI sheets
2. Browser based PI sheets

We shall concentrate on the later version that is browser based PI sheets

1 Master Data:

1. Material Master
2. BOM
3. Master Recipe.

2 Configuration Requirements

In the initial step transport all the predefined characteristics, message categories and display variants predefined by SAP from the reference client to our logon client.

- A. SPRO → Production planning for Process Industries → Process management → Standard settings

Here transport all the standard settings to your local client.

3 Control Recipes and Control Recipe Destinations

Control recipes are used to transfer the control data defined in the process order by the user to the process control. The control data like process instructions assigned to the phase are transferred to their respective destinations assigned in the phase.

Control Recipe Destinations: SAP standard has Four types of recipe destinations defined

1. Transfer to ABAP list based PI sheet
2. Download to ext. system, initiated by SAP process management
3. Download to ext. system, initiated by ext. process control
